Lessons from Health Impacts Assessment Practice for Assessing and Addressing Cumulative Impacts
Sandra Whitehead, Associate Professor, George Washington University School of Public Health and President, Society for the Practice of Health Impact Assessment (SOPHIA)

Increasingly, the use of Health Impact Assessment (HIA) is being explored as a viable tool for assessing and addressing cumulative impacts. For example, HIA was used for the General Iron/RMG scrap metal recycling facility permit analysis in the Southside of Chicago. It has also been highlighted in the EPA's $70-million EJ Government to Government Grant Program under the Inflation Reduction Act. Sandra Whitehead, a professor from the George Washington School of Public Health and President of the Society for the Practice of Health Impact Assessment (SOPHIA), will discuss lessons learned from the past ten years of HIA practice for cumulative impact assessment. The presentation will cover, among other things, methods which have emerged for use in HIAs such as pathway diagrams, impact tables, and use of mixed methods. Additionally, the presentation will focus on opportunities for scaling HIAs for use in different decision contexts. After Professor Whitehead's presentation, Dr. Kathleen Williams, a social scientist with EPA's Office of Research and Development, will provide reflections on its implications for EPA research and practice. This webinar is for EPA staff only. Please share with your colleagues and networks.

Sandra Whitehead is an Associate Professor and Program Director at the George Washington University's Sustainable Urban Planning Program. She also works as a consultant helping create capacity to address health and equity through cross sector partnerships. Dr Whitehead has provided training to over 650 professionals on centering health and equity in decision making. She has provided over 4,000 hours of technical assistance to communities across the nation. Her background also includes working in the Environmental Health Division of the Florida Department of Health; the National Association of County and City Health Officials and the National Environmental Health Association. She is also the president of the Society of Practitioners of Health Impact Assessment and a member of the US EPA National Environmental Justice Advisory Council.
